Seek Identity Of Woman Who Leaped To Death

CHICAGO, July 12.—(INS)—Chicago police today sought the identity of a woman of about 50 who plunged to her death from the Hotel Sherman in the Loop.

The woman's body, clad in pink pajamas, struck the pavement amid crowds of theatergoers late last night.

Four notes and two envelopes were found in the room (No. 888) which the woman had occupied since Saturday when she registered as Mrs. Grace Fields. Preliminary investigation of a Philadelphia address proved fruitless, police said.

Notes Written

Investigators said three of the four notes had been torn to pieces and thrown into a waste basket. A fourth one was addressed to "Tommy Baelet" and read:

"I am ill. Please help me."

Authorities theorized the note was addressed to the radio star whose "Welcome Travelers" radio show originates from the hotel.

Police said the three other notes were addressed to "Madeline". The most complete one read:

"I am sorry about the letter I wrote to you. Please send me my money back to me. I am registered here as Mrs. Grace Fields, c/o Sherman hotel. I have a job here."

The woman was described as five feet four inches tall, weighing 145 pounds, with blue eyes and brown hair.

Judging from the amount of luggage and other items strapped atop cars of vacationers moving through the city, some tourists are taking along just about everything but the kitchen sink. A surprising array of articles including beds, mattresses, chairs, cooking utensils, bikes, baby toys and a host of other articles.

Despite warning signs posted in prominent places along Route 108, the Harlansburg road, telling of work in progress and travel at your own risk, motorists continue to travel on the road as if it were not under construction. Unless speed is curtailed, travel on the road will be restricted entirely, it is reported by the contractor who is working on the project.

Pleven Completing French Cabinet

PARIS, July 12.—(INS)—Premier-designate Rene Pleven, armed with the promise of Socialist participation in his government, will present a cabinet list today to French President Vincent Auriol.

What were described as "last minute difficulties" prevented Pleven, assuming the Premiership for the first time, from completing his cabinet yesterday.

Byrnes To Be Governor Of South Carolina

COLUMBIA, S. C., July 12.—(INS)—James F. Byrnes was assured the governorship of South Carolina today by his victory in a Democratic primary which saw Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, the nation's number one States' Rights go down to defeat.

Incomplete returns at an early hour indicated that Sen. Olin D. Johnston successfully beat off Thurmond's challenge to his U. S. senatorial post.

With 1,447 of the state's 1,572 precincts reporting, Johnston had 151,131 votes to Thurmond's 138,327.

Despite the defeat of Thurmond who ran as States' Rights presidential candidate against President Truman in 1948, there could be little solace for Truman supporters in the primary's outcome.

Johnston scorned the States' Rights movement, but has been opposed to many administration measures, a fact that he made vigorously clear during the bitter primary race.

Delay Rail Strike Plans

CHICAGO, July 12.—(INS)—Federal mediators are scheduled to return to Chicago Friday to negotiate a wage-hour dispute which threatened to pull 250,000 rail workers off their jobs.

State's First Draft Quota Is Set At 1,401

Official Quota Somewhat Lower Than Estimated

HARRISBURG, July 12.—(INS)—

Pennsylvania's 175 local draft boards today awaited notification of how many men each must supply to fill the state's quota of 1,401 inductees no later than September 30.

Lt. Col. Henry M. Gross, state selective service director, yesterday was informed officially of Pennsylvania's share in the army's call for 20,000 draftees in the 19 through 25 age bracket.

He said he was ordered to have the men on their way to army camps "as soon as possible."

Begin Calls In August

"We probably will begin calling up men sometime in August and extend the call into early September," Gross said.

"If a board begins sending notices out by middle of July, a man still will not be in uniform until at least 31 days later," he added.

Boards will be allowed to fill local quotas at their discretion within the required time limit, Gross pointed out. There is no set schedule for notices to go out.

"Clerks are being delayed in their work slightly," he said, "by thousands of late registrants in Pennsylvania rushing into their local boards to register."

The official quota for Pennsylvania is 250 below Gross' preliminary estimate that Pennsylvania would supply a customary one-twelfth—1,650—of the number sought by the army.

Planes Force Tactics Change By Red Koreans

TOKYO, July 12.—(INS)—Mounting American and Australian air strikes today forced North Korean invading hordes to change their methods of troop movements in South Korea.

A communique issued at headquarters in Tokyo declared that the Communist invaders are now reorganizing and regrouping their forces in the dark of the night, "having found it unprofitable to do so during the day."

The change in methods was caused by the continued Allied air onslaught against North Korean troops and installations.

In air action Tuesday F-89s, B-29s and B-26s successfully struck at a wide variety of targets.

Bridges Blown Up

F-80 shooting star jets blew up an ammunition dump and destroyed a bridge in a rocket attack in the Chonan area. A railroad bridge and tracks at Osan were damaged.

Another rail bridge four miles south of Chechon was knocked out with rocket fire, and still another in the Chaghowan-Ni area was damaged.

F-80s and Australian Mustangs also destroyed six tanks, 51 trucks, two large artillery pieces, 12 box-cars, two halftracks, one jeep and two other vehicles.

Allied air strikes were credited officially with demolishing 45 North Korean tanks in two days—39 Monday and six Tuesday.

Youth Is Charged With Killing Father

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., July 12.—(INS)—A 16-year-old Neshaminy youth, who reportedly shot and killed his father last night while his mother watched in terror, was arraigned today on a homicide charge.

The son, Allen Pollock, was formally accused before Justice of the Peace William Wrigley at nearby Edison of firing a single bullet into his father's head in the climax of a family argument.

Physicians said the father, V. Irving Pollock, a junk dealer, died instantly.

Police said Allen told them his parents had been arguing almost constantly for the past several months.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Two of the nation's top strategists and military leaders in World War II today are advising President Truman on the Korean conflict.

International News Service learned that Mr. Truman has met at Blair House—his temporary residence—with generals of the Army George C. Marshall and Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Both officers retain their rank as five-star generals, although they are not officially on active duty. Marshall, who gave up his uniform to become Secretary of State and author of the Marshall Plan, is now head of the Red Cross. Eisenhower is president of Columbia University and is frequently mentioned.

Berserk Man Slays Two And Wounds Third

Tragic Shootings In Pittsburgh Hotel Early Today

PITTSBURGH, July 12.—(INS)—

A berserk night watchman who screamed, "I get even. I get even," shot and killed two men, wounded a third and terrified lobby guests in the fashionable Schenley hotel in Pittsburgh early today.

Police identified the killer as Domenico Omogrosso, 58, of Pittsburgh. He had been employed as a night watchman at the Oakland district hotel the last four years.

Hastily summoned police found Omogrosso holding the warm gun in his two hands and staring at the weapon when they entered.

Night Manager Herbert H. Kunde, 51, was in fair condition at Montefiore hospital.

Two Fatally Wounded

Desk Clerk John S. Harper, 65, died at the hospital, about six hours after the shooting.

Night baker Alphonse Marano, 61, was making biscuits in the basement bake shop when Omogrosso entered and fired two bullets which were fatal. One pierced the baker's head and the other ripped through his back and entered his heart.

Then, according to police, Omogrosso went to the lobby, where he jerked Kunde from a chair, whirled him about and fired at least three times at point-blank range. Kunde suffered bullet wounds of the cheek, left arm and neck. He then fired at Harper.

Bullets pierced Harper's neck and shoulder.

Although badly wounded and bleeding, Kunde staggered through the adjoining ballroom and took an elevator to the seventh floor where a physician treated him.

Lt. Nicholas Colanerie quoted Omogrosso as explaining his murderous attack by saying:

"I shoot them. They cause me trouble. They always make faces. Make lots of smart remarks about me behind my face."

Night Engineer Anthony Keratis told newsmen he saw Omogrosso just outside the kitchen door, prior to the shooting, and was worried by the stare on the night watchman's face. Other employees said Omogrosso has been "acting queer" lately.

Congress Must Act On Controls

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(INS)—President Truman will have to ask Congress for new powers if the administration decides to set up controls over wages, prices, production and manpower.

Some government officials expressed belief today that any such request will be made in a single proposal covering all aspects of the nation's economic life.

Only the outbreak of world war III would require the drastic move. With fighting confined to Korea, officials do not believe the action is necessary.

Porch Railing Falls On Man In Hammock And He Is Killed

CHICAGO, July 12.—(INS)—Bertine A. Hall returned home from work and plopped into his hammock for a rest.

Gen. MacArthur Has Proof Of Korean Red Atrocities

By FRANK EMERY

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

TOKYO, July 12.—Gen. MacArthur announced today he has received "documentary proof" of "barbarity and murder of American prisoners of war" by North Korean communist troops.

The supreme commander of United Nations forces in Korea said official photographs have reached Tokyo showing four American soldiers shot after their hands were tied behind their backs.

MacArthur formally declared in a special communique that he was "astounded by these barbaric acts" which "violate the precepts of civilization."

He issued a solemn warning that he holds the leadership of the North Koreans "responsible for permitting these uncivilized actions."

Action On Tax Bill Uncertain

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(INS)—Whether or not there will be a tax bill became more and more uncertain today.

But Sen. George (G) Ga., chairman of the senate finance committee, intends to report a bill to the floor—war or no war.

Whether it will be acted on them, or will die with the 81st congress, rests with the outcome of the Korean incident.

Senate majority leader Lucas (D) Ill., said that the tax bill situation is "problematical."

Lucas also said that if the Korean incident still continues to be as serious as at present—or more serious—when the time comes to go home the senate will recess instead of adjourn.

Urges Gen. MacArthur Be Given Decision On Use Of A-Bomb

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(INS)—A demand arose in the Senate today that Gen. MacArthur be given the option of using the atom bomb in Korea.

Sen. Brewster (R) Maine, said the A-bomb decision should be made by the United Nations supreme commander.

Natural Tank Obstacle

In his latest communique issued at 11:30 p.m. Wednesday 9:30 a.m. EDT, MacArthur pointed out that the Kum forms a "natural tank obstacle" protecting the vital American base and South Korean provisional capital of Taejon. At one place, the curling river dips to within only eight miles north of Taejon.

On the east wing of the main battlefront, MacArthur announced, South Korean troops were forced under enemy pressure to retreat east and southeast to positions along the Pongang river, a north-to-south tributary of the Kum.

In that area, the South Koreans were battling to prevent powerful North Korean tank-led forces from crossing the Pongang between Chongju and Umsong in a drive aimed at turning the right flank of the hard-pressed American troops along the bend of the Kum river above Taejon.

The supreme commander disclosed that Communist forces "in small groups" had commenced an even wider enveloping drive along South Korea's east coast where the enemy "steadily pushed south" against "naval gunfire" from Allied warships offshore.

Report Veterans Of China's Red Armies In Action

(BULLETIN)

TOKYO, July 13.—(Thursday)—(INS)—Survivors of four U. S. battalions fell back to the Kum today following a virtually suicidal rearward battle against three North Korean tank-led divisions north of the strategic river—a fight waged to cover the retreat of the main American forces to the south bank.

By HOWARD HANDLEMAN

(Far Eastern Director, I. N. S.)

TOKYO, July 13.—(Thursday)—U. S. Army rearward units fought bitter delaying actions on the north side of the Kum river today against North Korean armored legions pressing down to the strategic stream after the main American contingents had been forced to retreat to the south bank.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced late Wednesday night that "light" American detachments remained north of the Kum to delay the surging southward advance to the enemy forces, which reportedly include battle-tested veterans of China's Red armies.

The United Nations supreme commander, who condemned the North Koreans for perpetrating "barbarity and murder" upon captured Americans, said the continued pressure of the ruthless Communist invaders may force further withdrawals across the winding Kum.

Hoover Urges Rebuilding Of United Nations

EMPORIA, Kas., July 12.—(INS)—Former President Herbert Hoover renewed his demand for the "rebuilding of the United Nations" last night and predicted that communism will destroy itself.

Hoover, speaking at the dedication of Emporia's memorial to William Allen White, late editor of the Emporia Gazette, asked for a rebirth of the UN which would "confine communism to the people already enslaved."

The former Republican standard-bearer asserted:

"If the communist states like their slave ideology, we should engage in no loss of American lives to free them from it. Communism is a force of evil. It contains within itself the germs which in time will destroy it."

Two World Wars Fail

The former president pointed out that two world wars have failed to achieve lasting peace and then, referring to the Korean situation, said a new "attack has been made on the peace of the world."

Hoover said history "proved that we cannot change the ideas of men and races with machine guns and battleships" and added:

"Our purposes were confused in both wars by crusades with glorious phrases about the personal freedom of man."

"Ideological wars are no more capable of settling anything than the thousand years of crusades and religious wars of the middle ages. Such wars have no ending and no victory. The way of life of a people must come from within; it cannot be compelled from without."

Air Reservists To Hear Leader

Col. George M. Rogers

New Castle Air Reservists will hear Col. George M. Rogers, of the 9th Air Force at Langley AFB, Va., on Thursday evening, in The Castleton, when Col. Rogers will speak at a meeting of the 9539th Volunteer Air Reserve Squadron. It is announced by Capt. J. M. Frew, liaison officer, that the squadron meeting will be held at a buffet dinner, starting at 7:15 o'clock. Capt. Frew states that it is most important that air force reservists from Lawrence, Mercer, and Beaver counties, who are not yet assigned to a unit attend this meeting for clarification of their status.

An invitation has also been extended to members of the Navy and Marine Air Reserves, and the Air National Guard, to attend.

Col. Rogers directs the Air Reserve Training Squadron program in Pennsylvania and six other eastern states. He is a veteran of both wars, entering the service in 1917. After the outbreak of World War II, he was called back to active duty, and was assigned as executive officer for the Second Air Force Search and Rescue at Colorado Springs, Colo. In 1946, he was returned to Washington, D. C., where he helped activate the Air Reserve Service.

Col. Rogers was assigned to the Ninth Air Force in May, 1949, as Deputy Intelligence Officer, later becoming director of the VARTU program.

Undercover Agents To Give Testimony

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(INS)—Two former FBI undercover agents—a husband and wife team—launch an expose of communism in Ohio today before the house un-American activities committee.

John J. Edmiston, a financial reporter for the Dayton Journal, and his wife, Martha, are to disclose for the first time the secret role they played as planted FBI informants in 1940 and 1941. They are expected to begin naming names of Communist party members in Ohio industrial centers.

Committee sources declared that the couple expect to identify 100 to 150 Ohio communists in three-day hearing. The session today was scheduled to get underway at 1:30 p. m. EDT.

WARSHIPS AND PLANES AID ATTACKS ON REDS

bombarded a Communist east coast beachhead at Yangyang, just below the 38th parallel border, at dawn Wednesday, in an apparent endeavor to slow the enemy's movements down the shoreline railroad and highway.

The war bulletin announced renewed bombings and strafings by American and Australian planes which attacked bridges, railroads, highways, ammunition dumps and other enemy installations. Wednesday, the supreme commander said "extensive damage" was inflicted in these air strikes.

The main aerial blows were aimed at the area just above the flaming Kum river sector where Red columns and their communications were hit incessantly in an effort to prevent any quick crossings of the last major natural defense line shielding Taejon.

Half of South Korea Overrun
The Red legions were pressing down on points from "rich their heavy artillery were within shelling range" of Taejon, principal American base, on the Korean front and a city of nearly 100,000 residents.

The Communist invasion avalanche thus had overrun more than one-half of South Korea in 18 days, with spearhead columns penetrating as far as 106 miles below the 38th parallel border. About two-thirds of the entire Korean peninsula—or approximately 57,000 of Korea's 86,000 square miles—was under Red control as the war reached the strategic Kum.

Through mid-afternoon Wednesday, no reports had been received of any enemy attempts to cross the Kum.

U. S. Army tank and infantry units, severely mauled by numerically superior North Korean forces just north of the Kum, retreated across the strategic river Tuesday for what may develop into a Korean "battle of Verdun" to save Taejon.

"American forces have fallen back to the Kum river," announced Gen. MacArthur in a "careful sentence" of a communique issued from his Tokyo headquarters at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon (10:35 p. m. CST Tuesday).

Although the generals are not on active duty, the president could place them in that status without trouble. A defense department, or army, general order assigning them to specific work is all that would be necessary.

It was learned that the secret meeting of President Truman and the top World War II leaders covered not only the Korean war but a much wider scope. The officers gave Mr. Truman their opinions on the Communist situation in general and the grave danger of World War II.

Unknown to any but his most intimate advisors, the president summoned the two generals to Blair House, temporary residence of Mr. Truman while the White House is undergoing lengthy reconstruction.

The president sat down with Marshall and Eisenhower at luncheon and explored the world situation at great length.

Princess Elizabeth To Have Second Child At London Residence

LONDON, July 12.—(INS)—British court circles said today that Princess Elizabeth's second baby will be born at her London residence, Clarence House, about August 20.

All plans have been completed and a room has been readied for Sister Helen Rowe, who was the midwife-nurse at the birth of Prince Charles.

Rumors that the baby would be born in Scotland are now considered unfounded. Princess Elizabeth, friends say, is determined to have her second child in her own home.

Elizabeth, Charles and the new baby will go to Scotland as soon as possible after the birth.

Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, will arrive home on leave from naval duty some time before the birth of his second child.

Noted Gynecologist Sir William Gilliat, who attended Elizabeth at the birth of Charles at Buckingham palace in November, 1948, is again looking after the princess.

MacArthur's communique said: "Murder of prisoners of war is a violation of laws and customs of war, and perpetrators of such offenses as well as leaders who order, cause or permit the same, are subject to the death penalty when imposed by military tribunals."

"The world has been shocked by these atrocities which violate the precepts of civilization. Appropriate action is being taken to inform the North Korean people of the human acts committed by their armed forces."

Get 14 Weeks Training
The Army said the 20,000 men ordered into uniform under selective service will be given 14 weeks basic training at Fort Dix, N. J., Fort Knox, Ky., Fort Riley, Kans., and Fort Ord, Calif., before being assigned to units.

All draftees will be ordered to duty in the continental United States, and the Army spokesman added:

"If the Korean war continues, some of them may go overseas later, but the number probably will not be large, nor will this occur soon."

The officer said that "as far as we know, the call for 20,000 draftees will be the last."

TIMES CHANGE
PHILADELPHIA—(INS)—Jeff Davis, whose wanderings have taken him around the world six times, looked like anything but a hobo when he arrived in Philadelphia recently. Stepping off a bus, the king of hoboes sported a $20 pair of shoes, a $12.50 hat and a pigskin briefcase. "Times have changed," he explained.

Firemen were called out twice late Tuesday to answer alarms which proved to be false. One was received from box 58 at 2:50 p. m. and firemen found that a little girl about six years of age had turned in this alarm. Fire Chief H. F. Steinbrink states.

The bridal gown worn by Miss Bullano was fashioned of imported French lace with a nylon yoke insert. Rhinestone applique edged the off-shoulder neckline. A bustle effect complemented the back of the full skirt.

Best man for the occasion was Guy Delliquadri.

A wedding breakfast was served at the Calabra hall for fifty guests. Mr. and Mrs. Gesue are both graduates of the local high school, and Mr. Gesue is employed at the Johnson Bronze company.

A LESSON IN COOPERATION

Concerning the conduct at the huge Boy Scout Jamboree at Valley Forge, The Philadelphia Inquirer makes the following significant deductions:

"Among the many aspects of the Boy Scout Jamboree at Valley Forge which might be singled out for special commendation was one too outstanding to be overlooked: the amazing display of ability to live together and work together which was provided by the 47,000 boys gathered at the encampment.

"The entire week went by without a fistfight, without an exchange of bitter words and without a serious automobile accident.

"This record, compiled by boys from all parts of the United States and many foreign lands, has a special significance in a world where irritations and frictions too often seem to be the rule rather than the exception and where, in many larger cities at least, gangs of undisciplined youths are constantly being involved in acts of violence.

"Not all the credit for this fine showing goes to the Scouts and their leaders. The 500,000 visitors at the camp, the police who directed traffic over the congested roads and the firemen who guarded the safety of everyone played a glorious part in making possible this small example of the world as it ought to be, in which cooperation and consideration of the rights of others were so highly exemplified."

VISHINSKY'S HEALTH

Foreign Minister Vishinsky of Russia is reported to be vacationing for his health, and the rumor mills are trying to make something of it. There have been similar rumors every time he took a vacation, and so far they have not proved to be true.

But the favor of the Kremlin is as fickle as it ever was in the days of the czars, and there is more reason than usual to suspect that Vishinsky may really be on the skids this time.

The parallel with Litvinoff is suggestive. Litvinoff in the 30s was a strong supporter of the League of Nations. When he fell from favor, Russia adopted a tougher policy, abandoned the league and made a deal with Hitler. If Moscow were now preparing to abandon the United Nations, Vishinsky could expect to join Litvinoff in obscurity.

Vishinsky has proved himself a master of vituperation and invective, and Americans may not think of him as a UN supporter. But when he was not obeying orders, Vishinsky tended to be an amiable, urbane diplomat, one might almost say of the old school. He acted hostile only during working hours. His bosses may feel that he has become tainted with bourgeois cosmopolitanism."

There are, at any rate, plenty of straws in the wind suggesting that the Russians may be about to pull out of the UN. They are virtually out now, for that matter, having boycotted most UN agencies since January. But Soviet and Communist spokesmen are now showing a hostility toward the UN that is new, even for them.

Soviet withdrawal, followed by the other Iron Curtain countries, should surprise no one. In that event, Vishinsky's health is not likely to improve.

TROJAN HORSE PETITIONS

A wise man once set out to see if people actually will sign petitions without understanding them. His was some extremely ridiculous double-talk petition so worded that it required more than cursory reading to fathom its purpose.

And this wise man discovered that a great many people will sign almost any kind of petition if it is presented to them with a sales talk marked with clichés and catch words.

Commanders of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in many states warn the public to be on guard against petitions with an alleged peace message. It is asserted these petitions are actually sponsored by Communists and that when the text of them is examined carefully, it is found to call for peace through disarming—except on the part of Russia.

However, Veterans of Foreign Wars officials do not go far enough in warning the public against these petitions. While every loyal American should join them in their pleas against so-called "false peace" petitions, a note of warning against all kinds of petitions should be added.

None should be signed until after the sales talk has calmed down and there has been plenty of time to read the petition, word for word. Many people today adopt the wise position that they'll not sign any kind of a petition—at least not until they have thought it over thoroughly.

Beware of those who come knocking on the door with petitions. Too many of them are not unlike the conspirators who brought a gift to the walls of Troy—and everyone knows what happened to Troy!

Movement To Mediate War?

There were definite signs of a growing movement to mediate the Korean war or at least localize it on the peninsula with Great Britain playing a leading role.

A London spokesman has denied that Britain is actually attempting mediation at the present time.

But he said that the cabinet is deeply interested in Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Gromyko's willingness to talk about Korea and is determined to keep him talking if it can.

Instructions to this effect doubtless have been sent to Sir David Kelly, British ambassador to Moscow, and it apparently is believed possible that some common ground may be reached enabling some sort of arrangement whereby the conflict will lose some of its present menace to the whole civilized world.

Britain in Position
For once, Britain seems to be in a position to inherit the mantle of France as traditional arbitrator among the great powers.

She has recognized the communist government of China. And while Mao Tse-tung has not rushed to accept it, he has not rejected it and talks are believed continuing on consular level at least regarding the matter of terms.

There is a particular reason for British anxiety to bring about a solution if at all possible.

There is a strong communist movement in Malaya. And while the Chinese communists have announced their intention to re-take the island of Formosa from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists, the British feel that Hong Kong at any moment may become gravely endangered.

World communism has maneuvered itself into an avalanche of criticism by the invasion of South Korea and the Kremlin may feel that things have been allowed to go too far.

It is true that this act of aggression is serving to pin down large forces of American troops which in event of a new crisis might be badly needed elsewhere.

Moscow Faces Risk
But at the same time the charges of communist guilt are so unanimous that Moscow stands the risk of losing face in both Europe and the far east.

Certainly a decisive defeat of the North Korean communities would be a heavy setback to Marshal Joseph Stalin's international aims.

Military observers are confident that this will come about when American and other United Nations forces and supplies reach their proper combat level provided, of course, that Russia does not decide in the meantime to expand this local war into a global one.

It is noteworthy that up to the present time there has been no conclusive proof of any Soviet participation in the fighting.

There is no question that the North Koreans are using Russian-made planes and tanks and the extent of their training by Soviet personnel is provided simply by the fact that crack American units are having so much trouble in dealing with them.

But Russia thus far has refrained from the potentially fatal step of open intervention.

She has not withdrawn from the United Nations although her delegates are playing a sulk game and probably will continue to do so up until such a time as the Chinese question is settled definitely.

Up to now Russia has been able to disclaim all responsibility for what is happening in Korea.

She maintains that it is an internal affair—a civil war—and that the United Nations has exceeded its rights under the charter by ordering intervention.

This propaganda argument has had little or no effect. Forty-seven nations have promised to aid the concerted effort in Korea and these included some that were on the "doubtful list" in the long and painful diplomatic struggle between east and west.

The mediation possibility does not lessen General MacArthur's grave task at the present time. Some observers feel it may take until next spring to end the war. This could be changed, of course, by a nod from the Kremlin, something that might come about could be a real face-saving formula for a Russia that now may realize it has made a frightful mistake.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

TOO MUCH TRAVEL HARD ON CHILD

School children whose parents' work has caused the family to move, have some advantages and disadvantages. As they must come in touch with many new playmates, new adults and new ways of doing all sorts of things, these children have many more experiences and learn more about things not gained from books than does the average child. On the other hand, they may have to make adaptations so fast as not to feel very secure. Certainly they find it less easy to conform to more or less conventional ways. This pertains especially to school learning, since these children must often be exposed to new school books, new courses of study and new methods of teaching. They hardly have sufficient exercise in thorough mastery of essential skills and basic facts, unless their parents provide such mental exercise at home.

During the war there was an unusually large number of children traveling about, many of them mere babies then. They rarely had normal family life. Often they and the mothers lived with grandparents or other relatives and, naturally, were often pampered. They usually did not have opportunity to learn essential conformities. What of these children in school today?

Mother Writes
A teacher and mother of four children, one born before the war and three since, writes: "Will the war babies, the children who have been constantly during the first seven years of their lives, with parents or with one parent, adjust to the conventional school life and routine of the average school room where they constitute a very small number of group? Compared to the quiet, sheltered lives of most children during the war years, their experiences have been so different that my observation of these children seems to put them in a class by themselves."

"They seem advanced in all reasoning problems, hard to get to concentrate, uninterested in work and regular routines; just unable to quiet down. They have special knowledge of people and things and get along well with older children and adults. Should they be given special help or will they adjust to their experience? She adds: "We have a furnished temporary home 15 times during by older child's first seven years."

Good Analysis
Here, in substance, is how I wrote this mother: I think you have made a good analysis. While children differ widely as individuals, there undoubtedly is such a general trend that should challenge some young psychologists working for their Ph.D.'s.

Obviously, these children need some special training in physical, mental and social conformity. Their parents will might emphasize such matters at home. These children feed discipline in home routines, especially if they are under 10 or 12. They may need to be required to do regular jobs about the house, jobs they can't escape. (My bulletin, "How to Teach Your Child To Help at Home," may be had in a stamped envelope sent me at 235 East 45th Street, New York, N. Y.) They also need to play more with children of their own age.

Their parents might well check with the teacher on the special lack of learning skills in such children, as in reading, spelling and arithmetic. My bulletins on each of these subjects and on "The Child Who Does Not Concentrate" are still available for postage at above address.

It's never too late to help these children improve their ways. But the longer they continue to be neglected in the old ways, the less readily, of course, they will change and the more skillful, therefore, their parent and teachers will need to be.

I GO FISHIN'

Tired of warfare, hot or cold;
Weary of disputing;
Sick of scandals being told,
Pillaging and looting,
Tired of bickering and strife,
Something cleaner wishin';
Needin' hours of care-free life,
I go fishin'!

Tired of murder and divorce,
Wreck and conflagration;
Tired of hearing language coarse
Used for condemnation,
Tired of persons who betray
High or low position;
From all these to get away,
I go fishin'!

Tired of everything "they say",
Prejudiced and hateful,
Tired of gossip known as "they",
Bitter and ungrateful,
Weary of deceit and guile,
Board and probe commission,
Just to be myself awhile,
I go fishin'!

Folks Of Fame

John Singleton Copley was born of Irish parents at Boston, Mass., in 1771. He was self-educated and began his career as a portrait painter in his native city. He acquired his reputation in England with a small picture of a boy and squirrel which was exhibited at the Society of Arts in 1780. After a successful career in Boston he went to Rome, and then to England, where he was admitted an associate of the Royal Academy and later elected an Academician. He was the exhibition of his most famous picture, the Death of Chatham. His powers appear to great advantage in his portraits of Samuel Adams, John Quincy Adams, General Joseph Warren, Mrs. Warren and others.

Discuss Campaign Funds

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Republican Senators up for re-election this fall met the other day to discuss the all-important question of money and how to raise it. Intended as a pep meeting, it turned out somewhat differently than had been expected.

Present besides the Senators were national chairman Guy George Gabrielson, and Victor A. Johnston, director of the GOP Senate campaign committee. Presiding was Senator Owen Brewster of Maine, chairman of the Senate campaign committee.

Brewster spoke in a somewhat solemn vein about the difficulty of raising campaign funds. It would not be easy, he warned, to find sufficient money to help out in each state where there is a Senate contest. Consequently the money would have to be concentrated for the most part in crucial states.

Each Senator was called upon in turn for his suggestions. When it came round to Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon, he began with a good-natured grin to talk about his primary fight.

Received $51,473
In that contest the almost unknown challenger, Dave Hoover, a dairy farmer, received contributions of $51,473, and reported expenditures of $3,887 in excess of that amount. A lot of this money came in the east anxious to defeat Morse because of his liberal record.

"It so happens, gentlemen," said Morse, "that I was forced to run a deficit in my campaign. My opponent was spending a great deal of money that was sent in to him by prominent Republicans from outside the state."

Morse offered to furnish Gabrielson with a list of some of the largest of these contributions. They include the following:
Frederick C. Crawford, of Cleveland, former president of the National Association of Manufacturers—$1,000.

Ernest T. Weir, of Pittsburgh, Pa., chairman of the board of the National Steel Corporation—$1,000.

Charles E. Merrill of New York head of the brokerage firm of Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane—$1,000.

George W. Merck of Rahway, N. J., chairman of the board of the Pharmaceutical House of Merck Co.—$1,000.

F. Peavy Heflinger of Minneapolis, Minn., prominent in various grain elevator companies—$200.

Give Them A Message
"Now I don't know whether you are acquainted with any of the contributors or not," Morse continued, his voice underscored with irony, "but if you are, I wish you would give them a message for me. Tell them I have a deficit and I would appreciate it if they would help me make it up."

"But if they don't happen to feel like doing that, then I have a modest request to make. I wonder if you would ask them not to send any money in to my Democratic opposition in the fall campaign."

Morse knew full well, of course, that most of the big out-of-state contributors are among the fat cats who have forked out the money through all the lean years since 1932 to keep the national committee going. He was also aware that it is these same fat cats who have, in return for their generosity, insisted that the party officially shun anything like "me tooism" or the welfare measure sponsored by the Democrats.

Issue He Sponsors

The Senator went on to say—and this was a pleasant surprise to his more conservative colleagues—that the issue he intended to emphasize in Oregon in the fall was the failure of the Democrats to keep the peace, and provide proper defenses for the west. As this is the line the conservatives want to hammer home to the voters, it appears there will be more unanimity than might have been expected in spite of differences over money.

Gabrielson replied courteously to Morse, he said that if the Senator would furnish the list of contributors, he would try to get in touch with them and ask them to refrain from any aid and comfort they might contemplate furnishing to the enemy.

The evidence of big spending by business and conservative interests continues to grow. In the recent Oklahoma primary the utilities and other groups are reported to have spent well over a half million dollars in an unsuccessful effort to re-elect Senator Elmer Thomas. Representative Mike Monroney ran nearly 15,000 votes ahead of Thomas, but must meet Thomas again in a run-off on July 25.

A stimulus to political spending by big business was provided by accounts of the political activity of the big trade unions. There were published reports of huge union campaign chests. But it is an ironic fact that the unions have thus far in this campaign year had a tough time scraping up even small amounts of money. So the much heralded political drive by the unions may prove to be something less than an asset.

To emphasize the problems that confront a television executive, Fred Friendly, who runs the intriguing "Who Said That?" show tells of the day a two-headed man marched into a TV agent's office. "You're a natural for television," cried the agent joyfully. "I'll not only build a weekly comedy program around you, but I'll arrange personal appearances for you at every Elks', Masons', and Oddfellows clubs in the county."

"Nix on that," said the two-headed man sourly. "I'm only interested in Shakespearean roles."

David Dempsey tells about a proper Bostonian who was deeply shocked when a bookshop clerk tried to sell her "America's Cook Book" instead of the time-honored "Boston Cook Book." "What in the world is this?" she sniffed. The salesgirl replied, "Why, this has recipes from all the other parts of the country." "Young lady," retorted the customer, "there are no other parts of the country."

Who'll Start World War III?

(By HOLMES ALEXANDER)

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 12.—Is it true that World War III will be started by Russia or not started at all? This question is now up for critical analysis as the Korean War drags its slow length along. There is now more than a lurking suspicion that the Administration has been out-foxed again by the Kremlin schemers. The spectacle of American GIs killing brown-skinned foreigners is the best propaganda Stalin has had in a coon's age. As Senator Tydings pointed out in a solemn Blair House conference, the GIs will now have to stay in Korea until the world situation—not just the Korean situation—has been resolved in our favor. It's now sinking in upon our planners that world situations are only settled by world wars. If that's true, can we let Russia name the D-Day?

Gloom as thick as the Korean flying weather now lies upon the Defense and State departments, explaining in part why World War III may be the terrible but wisest choice.

Tricked Into Leading

From a military viewpoint, we have been tricked into leading with our weakness rather than our strength. Both the Air Force and the Navy have been built up to fight Russia, not a police action. Our high level bombers are good for nothing except to attack urban targets. Our jet fighters are much too fast for tactical support of ground troops. The Navy, which under Admiral Sherman has concentrated on submarines and anti-sub warfare, is not a useful weapon in Korea and would be any more useful in Iran, Yugoslavia or Indo-China. The armed services were all pointed at World War III, which is as it should be, but the change of events has spoiled their aim.

In the State Department the whole concept of police action is being challenged by disturbing realities. Your reporter was told yesterday by an expert that the "most serious" problem is the naked fact that Asiatics are willing to fight against us but not for us. Our previous commitment to democratize the brown, black and yellow skins of the Eastern Hemisphere does not yield a glimmer of promise at this writing. It is heresy to say so, and nobody's willing to be quoted, but the Asiatics would rather be Communists than colonialists. I have been told this was what Secretary Acheson was hinting at when he said last January that the Asian peoples preferred to make their own mistakes.

Can't Supply Missing Link

So far the State Department hasn't been able to supply the Koreans with the missing link—the middle choice—between Communism and colonialism. The missing link is nationalism, and it has worked quite well in India and Indonesia. In Korea it hasn't worked at all. Fifty years ago we were able to go into Cuba and the Philippines where we sat on the lid until the natives established a stable government of sorts. The State Department admits that we can't do that now without making propaganda hay for the Kremlin.

Still another unhappy thought is going the official rounds. One Russian atomic bomb delivered upon the Japs, the only nation with previous experience in that field, would turn a frantic populace loose upon Gen. MacArthur's thinly spread occupation forces. Sixty Russian submarines could produce a situation reminiscent of Bataan. It ought to be mentioned here that the calmest man in Washington is President Truman. Captain Harry of Battery B doesn't panic easily. If things are as bad as they seem, he doesn't show it.

Some Points Driven Home

Yet the Korean War is driving home some points which the Administration has hitherto ignored. Among these are:

(1) That we should shorten our defense lines in the Pacific and not risk being cut off too far from home.

(2) That the best defense against Russia is a powerful striking force, based on the North American continent, rather than feeble outposts in Asia and Europe.

(3) That we should consider stability, rather than democracy, the prime virtue in anti-Russian governments everywhere. This would mean a less haughty attitude toward Chiang, Franco, DeGaulle and even Tito.

But, above all, the lessons of Korea have brought a new realism to bear upon the contemplation of World War III. As Patrick Henry once put it: "Gentlemen cry Peace, Peace—but there is no peace."

Looking At Life

By ERICH BRANDEIS

You may laugh at me when you read this, but one of my favorite bits of literature is "Alice in Wonderland."

Whenever I get disgusted with realities, I turn to some part of Lewis Carroll's delightful whimsy and feel refreshed and cheerful.

It is surprising how much the quaint characters in this delightful story is in back of all the apparent nonsense.

For instance, the other day I felt disgusted with Albert Einstein's latest expectation on what we should do with dear old Russia and how we should end the cold war and bring about eternal peace and brotherhood between Stalin's country boys and ours.

I said to myself, how astonishing it is that a man who is so enormously wise in his own field could be so utterly foolish in others. I got madder and madder—like the Mad Hatter—and wondered whether Einstein had not, like Alice, got lost in a Wonderland of which he knew nothing, and in which there were no guide posts.

Perhaps, like the Cheshire Cat, he just didn't understand the language. Perhaps, in Stalin and his bunch, he just didn't recognize the species.

Perhaps he was so busy with his cube roots and mathematical problems that in studying the universe he had never found time to study the people who live in it.

So, to quiet my nerves, I turned to Alice in Wonderland. I came to that part where she found the tiny golden key on the three-legged table.

After fumbling around for a while she finally found that the key opened a little door about 15 inches high. It led into a passage not much larger than a rat hole. She knelt down and looked along the passage into the loveliest garden you ever saw. But she couldn't have gotten more than her head through the doorway.

"And even if my head would go through," thought poor Alice, "it would be of very little use without my shoulders. Oh, how I wish I could shut up like a telescope!"

So she went back to the table and found a little bottle on it, and tied around the neck was a label "Drink Me".

But Alice was suspicious. She first wanted to see whether it had a label marked "POISON" on it.

"For she had read several stories about children who had got burnt, and eaten up by wild beasts and other unpleasant things, all because they would not remember the simple rules their friends had taught them; such as, that a red-hot poker will burn you if you hold it too long; and that, if you cut your finger too deeply with a knife, it usually bleeds; and she had never forgotten that, if you drink from a bottle marked 'POISON' it is almost certain to disagree with you sooner or later."

Well, this particular bottle was not labeled "POISON", so Alice drank the contents and, as you remember, shrank so that she could get through the passage into the beautiful garden.

However, that is another story.

The reason this particular part of Alice in Wonderland appealed to me is that it reminded me of Einstein.

As Aesop, the famous fabulist, might say: "Don't drink of a bottle whose contents you don't know. It is liable to shrink you very, very much."

NIBBLICKS TO HAVE THREESOME EVENT

If two is company, three will not be a crowd this Thursday at the New Castle Country club when ambitious lady golfers assemble to try once more to whittle down their scores.

For off we go in threesomes this "Ladies' Day" and the trio with the lowest aggregate score will carry off the honors.

Therefore, gather together, you all, three by three, and let's see which threesome makes a winning combination.

By reason of our rainy pass the law of averages should mean a stellar golfing day, so let's make plans for a record turnout.

Gene Tunney Not Writing Novel

NEW YORK, July 12—(INS)—in this instance was since nee Mr. Gene Tunney, a local boy who made good in the squared circle some years ago, has recently been the victim of a distasteful piece of malicious gossip.

Broadway columns have been filled with reports that Mr. Tunney, a well-known admirer of Wm. Shakespeare, is in the throes of literary composition. Even the literary columns (Ed's note: a literary column is a combined gossip and Broadway column written by anyone named Bennett Cerf) have discussed the fact that Mr. Tunney is writing a novel.

Furthermore, the gossips are all agreed that Mr. Tunney, former undefeated World's Heavyweight Boxing Champion, is writing his opus under the aegis of Mr. John Marquand, author of "The Late George Apley," "B. F.'s daughter," "Wickford Point" and "H. M. Pulham, Esq.," to name a few.

Naturally, the inference in one or two columns was that "Aegis" with practically his original waistline.

To what do you attribute this nasty canard? was my next question.

"Well," began Mr. Tunney, "I was dining recently with the John Marquands and among the other guests was a newspaper publisher."

"Gad!" I said bitterly. "They never get anything right. No wonder you was fooled!"

"And this publisher," continued Mr. T., "Obviously construed the light table banter as a hot item that I was writing a novel with John's help. I can't understand it."

Never Talk to Publishers

"Leave this be a lesson to you; never talk to publishers. Just confine your remarks to reporters," I cautioned, "and you got at least a Chinaman's chance of getting it in the paper right."

"So apparently this publisher told his Broadway columnist, and every other columnist has reprinted it as gospel," continued the would-not-be author.

"I don't think I'm another Jim Tully," Mr. Tunney added. "As far as I know, he's the only prize fighter who ever wrote a novel."

Mr. Tunney confided that he is not the man to muscle in on Mr. Tully's reputation in the novel field. Nor, he added, did he contemplate snatching the laurels from the brow of Hackenschmidt.

"Gad, I didn't know he even had any brow, much less laurels," I said, showing my ignorance in plain daylight. "Who is Hackenschmidt and can you spell it?"

Wrote a Book

Hackenschmidt, said Mr. Tunney, who also spelled it, was the world's champion wrestler who wrote and published a book on philosophy around 1912.

"The gorgeous George of his day?" I asked.

"No, no!" said Mr. Tunney emphatically. "Hackenschmidt was a real wrestler and good. His book was good, too. So good that George Bernard Shaw plugged it."

Mr. Shaw, it then turned out, is the real reason Mr. Tunney isn't writing a novel about the prize ring and championship bouts.

"Shaw wrote the best fiction ever on prize fighters in 'Cashel Byron's Profession,'" Mr. Tunney declared, referring to the famous Shaw novel on the prize ring, and added handsomely, "I couldn't expect to top that."

Of course you recognize it.

Who doesn't know that those four Ventiports, that graceful sweep of fender-chrome, mark ROADMASTER—best of all the Buicks, unquestioned "big buy" of the fine-car field?

But have you tried it?

Have you matched this sweet-stepping bonny against the tall hills, and the call of the straightaway?

Ever tooted it across town — and seen how Dynaflo's quick surge and smooth take-off slip you through traffic with minimum of foot-motion and maximum of timesaving?

Ever known the good feel of a light and easy wheel, swinging almost at a finger's touch — the soul-satisfying lift in a big 152-hp Fireball engine just waiting for the release your toe-pressure gives it?

Ever sampled that famous Buick ride—steady, level, unperturbed, soft with the special gentleness of coil springs on all four wheels, sweetly restful in both front and rear seats?

There's no reason, really, to wait longer for such satisfying experience.

There's a Buick dealer near you. He delights in showing off ROADMASTER. He'll arrange — unless all his demonstration cars have been snatched away from him by eager buyers — to put you behind a ROADMASTER wheel.

Why not see him now — to find out what's finest in today's fine cars, and how little it takes to buy one?

BLITZ ON BUGS

DDT is a household term today—but it took over 50 years for it to get that way! Its formula was worked out originally by a German student named Zeidler in 1874, but he did nothing with it other than record it. It took the second World War, a crop crisis and Swiss Chemist Paul Mueller to bring DDT to light again and into use as an insecticide. Mueller's rediscovery saved Swiss crops... and many lives, indirectly, for DDT was extensively used in combating insect-borne diseases during the war.

It takes a long time to "make a name"—yet one can be lost almost overnight. That is why we're so careful in everything we do for you to make sure our high standards of purity, quality and service are continuously maintained.

Man Is Tortured, Robbed And Then Killed By Robbers

SANFORD, Me., July 12.—(INS)—A well-to-do stock broker was ambushed and beaten to death early today in his home by killers who apparently tortured him into opening a wall safe and then murdered him.

The victim was Herman H. Loy, 55, only five feet, one inch tall. Joy stepped into the ambush in the study of his home on his return from a small variety store which he operated for his GI son-in-law now studying in Arizona.

His body was found by his son, Leonard, 22, who had been in the store with him and who followed him home about 10 minutes later. Joy had been given a special police guard for the past two months because strange men had followed him home from the store on several occasions.

Register Bicycles
Only 87 Recorded

Miss Caroline Black, clerk to chief of police, who was in charge of bicycle registration in the ward, on Monday and Tuesday, reports that there were but 87 registrations. Last year there were over 100 registrations, and it is felt that many have not yet registered, possibly many owners being on vacation, or through neglect.

This registration must be attended to at the earliest moment, as the law will be enforced within a reasonable time. Since the inauguration of bicycle registration here, not one bike has been lost or stolen, as they are fully registered, with name and address of owner, make, serial number, boy or girl's bike, 24, 26, or 28 inches frame also noted. This recorded information should be of much value to bicycle owners, having restored a number of bicycles to the owner's possession.

MAKE PLAY YARD SAFE FOR CHILDREN

It is not too late to check the outdoor play yard for any hazards to a child's safety.

If the child is under five, plan for a suitable fence around the play space. That is one of the first safety precautions to consider. The fence should be one that will restrain a child under three years of age. To a child older than three, the fence can simply be a means of telling him how far he can go. Many children three years and older can be reasoned with and can take the responsibility for remaining within bounds.

Many anxious moments, as well as serious accidents, can be prevented by the use of a fenced-in area where children can play safely. In cities and towns traffic presents the greatest hazard to the safety of children. In the country a child may wander into the woods, along streams or dangerous places. Barns and stock lots are also places of danger for tiny tots. A fence around the play yard is just as important to the homemaker and the safety of children as fences are to the farmer for the safety of crops and livestock.

To help maintain good health, a child needs to spend a good part of each day playing in the open air. This will increase his appetite and help him to sleep soundly at nap time and at night. The child who has vigorous outdoor play welcomes sleep.

QUICK ACTION NEEDED FOR SPOTS AND STAINS

Spot removal is easy when it is kept under control. The sooner the spot is removed, the easier, quicker and more successful the result will be.

Before pressing or washing a garment, examine it for spots. Stains that have dried or have been set by laundering may be difficult to remove. Hot water will set stains, such as blood, meat juice or egg; soapsuds will set others like tea, coffee or fruit stains.

How to remove the stain depends on the type of stain, the color and kind of fabric, and whether or not the garment is washable. There are three general classes of stain removers: solvents, absorbents and bleaches.

Solvents, such as benzene or carbon tetrachloride, are used to dissolve grease, lipstick or chewing gum. Lay soiled spot over a pad of folded cloth; sponge with a cloth dampened in solvent and work from outside to center of spot.

Absorbents take up stains like blotters and do not leave rings. Work absorbent, like Fuller's earth or talcum powder, into the stain with fingers, brushing it off as it becomes colored. Repeat until stain is removed.

Bleaches should be used only when the non-greasy stain will not respond to the mildest treatment first. Stretch stained material over a bowl of steaming hot water; moisten stained part with water, then drop chemical on stain with medicine dropper. Let stand a minute and rinse thoroughly. Do not allow any bleach to stay in fabric. Never use a bleach without first checking on the fabric, color and method for using. Bleaches are safe for cotton and linens if used correctly, but do not use a bleach on rayons without testing fabric first. Some stains may be bleached by moistening with a lemon juice and salt mixture, then drying in bright sunlight.

RUNNING WATER IS AID TO FARM OPERATIONS

Why pump water by hand or carry it in buckets from a spring when electricity can do the job better and cheaper? Next to lighting, the most valuable use of electricity on most farms is for pumping water.

For example, consider a farm without an automatic water system, a family of five persons, with three horses, five cows, three hogs and 300 chickens. This farm family will use 150 gallons of water per day or 54,750 gallons a year. This amount of water weighs over 228 tons and if it has to be carried 50 feet from the well in a 12-quart bucket, somebody will walk over 340 miles a year doing it.

On most Pennsylvania farms five cents spent for electric current will deliver 1,000 gallons of water wherever it is needed. Past experience has proved that families with automatic water systems will use three or four or more times as much water as they did when it had to be pumped by hand.

Running water is a major contribution to good health. It encourages members of the family to bathe regularly and brush the teeth daily. Washing the clothes and caring for the small children becomes a more pleasant task for the mother. In the tub or on the lawn, water can afford amusement for the children.

Water under pressure has many advantages besides saving time and labor. Fresh water in drinking cups in the dairy barn helps the cows give more milk. Automatic fountains in the poultry house enables young birds to grow faster and also will produce an abundance of hens to lay more eggs. Gardens will also produce an abundance of fresh, tender vegetables during a long dry season when water under pressure is available for irrigation.

An automatic water system installed on the farm will bring many more advantages.

SOW WHEAT FREE OF STINKING SMUT

If stinking smut is present in this year's wheat crop, farmers are advised to treat their seed for fall sowing with new improved Ceresan or get clean seed from other sources.

Stinking smut may be observed in the field, or its presence detected in threshing or seed cleaning by the fishy odor which it gives off. Extension plant pathologists of the Pennsylvania State College report some infection in nearly every county in the state.

'POOR MANAGEMENT' CAUSES HIGH NUMBER OF FARM FIRES

A clean farm usually is a fire hazard that is safe from fire. Many farm fires are caused by "poor house-keeping." Among these causes are accumulations of rubbish, careless use and storage of flammable fluids, dirty or defective electrical equipment, dirty or defective stoves, lamps or lanterns, dirty cracked chimneys and dirty defective heating plants.

Time spent in correcting fire hazards is time well spent.

The altitude record for an American single-stage rocket is 106.4 miles.

Around Hollywood

By FRANK NEILL
(International News Service Staff Correspondent)

HOLLYWOOD, July 11—They filmed one of the big tango scenes for "Valentino," the film story of the great Rudy's life and times, but the result on Celluloid looked like something out of a slapstick comedy.

Tony Dexter, "the spitting image" of the immortal Rudolph Valentino, and Eleanor Parker, who supplies the romantic interest in the picture, were the principals in the tango sequence which had so disastrous a climax.

Ready to Go
Tony, bedecked in an Argentine Gauchito outfit—similar to the one worn by the Latin lover in his big movie break, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," and Eleanor in a slinky evening gown took their places when they were given their cue.

They both fussed around more than usual with their clothes. The reason was that each was wearing a hidden walkie-talkie earphone attuned to a romantic tango.

As the music started, Eleanor got a dreamy look in her eyes and Tony assumed "The Valentino Look." The two glided into their sultry tango while the camera followed them about the set.

How to Laugh
Suddenly the romance was tossed to the winds and the couple appeared to be all feet. Eleanor first looked surprised and then burst into giggles. Tony stumbled around and fussed with his concealed earphone.

More than half the American women who work are married.

astounded, because everything had been going so smoothly on the big production thus far.

"What?" Small asked his performer, "what brought that on?" Eleanor was laughing so hard she couldn't talk. Tony told the producer:

"It's the walkie-talkie it started out all right—nice music! but then it switched to soap opera—something about a mother whose daughter was going to commit suicide and whose husband was taking up with a chorus girl!"

Pick-Up Gremlins
Technicians said that the earphones had picked up a Gremlin or two with the result that the romantic strains of the tango gave way to a radio station program in which the trials and tribulations of a soap opera serial were being aired.

The film take of the ruined tango sequence will be added to Small's film library of memorable movie blowups.

UP TO TIMES
David O. Selznick evidently is going to produce a picture or two about the Korean situation. The noted movie man registered the following titles the day he arrived in Hollywood from Europe:

"Crisis in Korea," "South Korea," and "Korea." Just to break the monotony, he also registered "Formosa" and "Indo-China."

Comedian Dean Martin Loses Court Appeal

HOLLYWOOD, July 12—(INS)—Comedian Dean Martin has failed in an attempt to win cancellation of an agreement under which he pays $3,435 monthly for the support of his former wife Betty, and their four children. Superior Judge William B. McKesson dismissed Martin's appeal Monday on the ground that the entertainer had permitted court approval of the settlement when Mrs. Martin obtained a Nevada divorce last August.

Martin complained the agreement deprives him of 50 to 100 per cent of his monthly income instead of one-third, as he had thought when he signed.

DOES MAN PAY WOMAN'S FARE?

"Recently I met a man of my acquaintance in the bus. Since he is a neighbor who gets off the bus at the same stop as I am I did not wish him to pay my fare. I had the money all ready to hand to the driver when we reached our destination. My companion, however, insisted upon paying for me which embarrassed me. Could it be that I was wrong?"

Answer: No, you were not wrong to have your fare ready to hand to the bus driver. And while your neighbor should have let you pay it, since he did not there is nothing you can do under the circumstances but let him pay it. To avoid such a situation in the future, I should, in your place, try to sit somewhere other than with this neighbor should you happen to ride in the same bus.

Question: I am planning on taking a short sea cruise on my vacation this year. Since I shall go alone, would it be permissible for me to make myself acquainted with strangers aboard ship and indulge in the sports events and the dances aboard?

Answer: To a certain extent conventions are disregarded on shipboard. You may, with utter propriety, strike up an acquaintance with those seated at your table in the dining saloon. In fact, to sit beside them for days and ignore their presence would be far from courteous. Even though you are alone, you may attend the dances and sports aboard, but I would suggest that you form a few acquaintances before these events so that you will not feel lost and embarrassed upon going into the ballroom or to participate in the various sports unaccompanied. If you make yourself acquainted with those seated at the table with you, you will, through them, make other friendships.

Present your problems to Miss Markel, who will promptly send personal replies to questions from readers inclosing stamped, addressed envelopes.

How Hudson's exclusive recessed floor brings you America's Roomiest Car!

HUDSON

Recessed floor ("step-down" design) brings the space between frame members, which is wasted in other cars, into Hudson's passenger compartment. This results in America's lowest center of gravity (and full road clearance), while providing more head room and seating room than any other car.

OTHER CARS

Floor is on top of the frame, so the vital space between frame members is not available for passenger use. The result is a higher center of gravity and either a high roof line or insufficient head room. Seats are narrower; passenger space is reduced.

First Guided Missile To Be Flight-Tested At Cocoa, Fla., July 19

WASHINGTON, July 12—(INS)—The Defense Department announced that the first guided missile to be flight-tested at the new Air Force Long-Range Proving Ground at Cocoa, Fla., will be launched from the Cape Canaveral area July 19.

Under supervision of the Army Ordnance Department, the General Electric Co. will fire the two-stage rocket missile known as "bomber"—the same projectile which set an altitude record of 250 miles over the White Sands, N. M., proving ground last year.

Purpose of the new test is to "investigate certain high supersonic velocity phenomena at relatively low altitudes and to make a further study of the principles of launching a small rocket from a large one in flight."

The "bomber's" large missile is an improvement on the German V-2, 100 of which were brought to the United States in 1945. The smaller missile is the famed American "bomber" first launched in 1947. Ordnance spokesmen said the "WAC Corporal" will be fired from the warhead compartment of the larger rocket. Both radar and optical instruments will be used in recording the exact trajectory. A second "bomber" will be fired from the Cocoa proving ground July 26.

Senator Byrd Gives Warning

Cites Program Of Russia To Destroy Solvency Of U.S.

By FRANK B. ALLEN
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(INS)—Sen. Byrd (D) Va., warned the Senate that "it is likely and probable" that incidents similar to the Korean War will break out elsewhere in the world.

Byrd, in debate on the $4.6 billion dollar Omnibus Appropriations Bill, declared that the government must save money at home in order to push the Korean War and possibly future conflicts.

The Virginia Senator, a leading economy advocate, cited the Berlin airlift and the Korean incident as examples of how Russia is trying to destroy the solvency of the United States.

He said:

"It is likely and probable that other such incidents will break out elsewhere on the globe in which our nation will be involved."

Byrd said the "Korean incident will probably cost billions" and declared:

"If the incident should develop into a world conflict, we would incur a public indebtedness which would be colossal and overwhelming that it would be impossible for us to maintain our free enterprise system."

U.N. Appeals For Observance Of War Rules

By PIERRE J. HUSS
(U. N. Staff Correspondent)

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., July 12.—The United Nations appealed today to North and South Koreans to observe the Geneva convention on war prisoners, casualties and civilians and to accept the services of the International Red Cross.

Secretary General Trygve Lie dispatched urgent messages on behalf of U. N. to Foreign Minister Pak Hen Nen of the North Communist regime and to Foreign Minister Ben C. Limb of the South Republic.

A copy of the messages also was sent to Colonel Alfred G. Katzin, chief of the U. N. commission in Korea.

Lie acted in the face of growing evidence from the Korean battlefield that atrocities are increasing, and that American soldiers have been maltreated and killed after falling into North Korean hands.

In calling attention to the Red Cross offer of services to both sides, Lie said:

"In view of the gravely disturbing reports of the shooting of prisoners and other acts, contrary to humanitarian principles, I urge most strongly that you accept the International Red Cross offer and follow strictly the principles of the Geneva conventions as the best means of avoiding such incidents."

The United States also is studying ways of bringing to justice any North Koreans guilty of atrocities against American soldiers. A demand may be made in U. N. for the establishment of a special tribunal to handle such cases after the fighting has ended.

V.F.W. Convention At Harrisburg

HARRISBURG, July 12.—(INS)—The 31st annual encampment of the Pennsylvania Veterans of Foreign Wars officially opens tomorrow at Harrisburg for thousands of ex-servicemen of three wars.

The convention will end Saturday with the election and installation of officers.

Retiring department commander G. Lynn Brotherson of Erie is slated to be succeeded by senior vice commander Louis G. Feldmann of Hazleton, a Marine veteran of World War II.

Junior vice commander James J. Davis, Jr., son of the late U. S. senator, is to succeed Feldmann.

Report 20,000 Fail To Apply For Bonus

HARRISBURG, July 12.—(INS)—Approximately 20,000 eligible ex-servicemen failed to apply for Pennsylvania's veterans bonus, director Clyde Rankin announced today.

He said 1,194,735 veterans applied for their compensation before the July 1 filing deadline.

Preliminary estimates had placed the number of ex-servicemen eligible for the bonus at 1,215,000. The bureau has mailed 702,923 checks to date, Rankin said, out of 724,806 approved for payment.

Charges Files Were Stripped

(BULLETIN)

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(INS)—Sen. McCarthy (R) Wis., today sent to President Truman four signed statements which he claimed prove that State department personnel files were "stripped" just before the Federal loyalty program went into operation.

McCarthy said the statement were by men who had worked in the State department in late 1946, when the removal of derogatory information on all department employees allegedly took place.

The statement quoted three of the men as saying they took part in the "stripping" and the fourth—now an FBI agent—as saying he knew it was taking place.

Members Of U.N. Volunteering Ground Forces

By DARRELL GARWOOD
(U. N. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Members of the United Nations are volunteering ground forces today to aid United States troops fighting in Korea.

At the same time battlefront reports indicated that Chinese Communist troops already have entered the war on the side of the North Koreans.

A defense department spokesman said that concrete evidence of Communist forces other than the North Koreans in the war is lacking, but added that "we could not possible make any other assumption" than that outside Red troops might be involved.

The official stated that this is the basis for the Army's call on state selective service directors for 20,000 draftees "as soon as possible and not later than Sept. 30."

Sen. Tydings (D) Md., chairman of the Senate Armed Services committee, asserted late Tuesday that other countries will send ground troops. The countries were not named.

Tydings talked to newsmen after his committee received a secret report on the Korean war from Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff.

Farm Air Tour Is Being Held Today

Nine Lawrence County farmers were "up in the air" today, but it was something over which they got quite a kick, and left them with an experience they will not forget soon.

The group were taken for an air tour of their farm and those of their adjoining neighbors from the New Castle airport, under the auspices of the Lawrence County Agricultural Extension Association, so that they might learn what their farms look like from the air, and enable them to compare their holdings with those of their neighbors.

The air tour was scheduled for Tuesday, but was postponed until today because of unfavorable weather conditions yesterday. It was designed to bring out approved agricultural practices, such as contour farming, farm ponds, forest tree planting, and other good farming practices.

Bachelor buttons which have finished their first blooming period may often be made to flower again by shearing at least six inches from the tops of the plants. Then fertilize them with liquid manure.

Will Organize Defense Unit

Judge Braham Named To Head Council

In line with the wishes of the Federal government and also of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania a Defense Council will be set up in Lawrence County.

Judge W. Walter Braham has been named by Governor James H. Duff to head the local unit as Co-Ordinator and is now engaged in naming heads of the many departments of the council. Paul L. Dingledy has been named Deputy So-Ordinator.

One of the first units to be set up is the Ground-Air Observation unit with the following supervisors named. For New Castle, Fred Alexander, 507 Whippo Street, For Ellwood City, J. Ralph Little, 732 Todd Avenue, For New Wilmington, Wallace McKain, 211 High Street, For Bessemer, Carl B. Nord, For Harlansburg, Russell McClelland.

These supervisors will name twenty deputies each and will also select the observation posts. For the present the unit will be on a stand-by basis but in case of active service all reports would be telephoned to Key Point Air Raid Warning Center in Butler, which in turn would clear the calls through the Screening Center in Pittsburgh.

The Defense Council is a many sided organization. There will be a steering committee, a council executive, and such divisions as Education, Medical and Medical Evacuation Division, Technical Defense, Auxiliaries and others.

The idea of a Defense Council has not been spurred on by the trouble in Korea. It has been under way for several months and is now down to the local level. In a short time Judge Braham will name the various divisional heads. The Defense Council will be more or less on a stand-by basis, but will be so organized that it can be alerted within a few hours notice.

WAS NOT SLAIN
AKRON, O., July 12.—(INS)—Mrs. Lottie Gibson, 31, returned to her Akron home to find out that she had been murdered.

Police identified a body in Berkeley Spring, W. Va., as that of Mrs. Gibson and issued a warrant, charging a friend of the Akron woman with murder.

Mrs. Gibson said that she had visited 34 states in the last year and a half, but West Virginia wasn't one of them.

The unusual development leaves Berkeley Spring officials with an unidentified body.

Coleen Townsend Aids Evacuees

Former Movie Star Working in Paris

By IRVING R. LEVINE
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, July 12.—(INS)—Coleen Townsend, who recently rejected a life of glamour as a Hollywood screen actress, described herself today as "happy and excited" in her new work as a church social welfare worker in a refugee camp.

She explained that "meeting and talking to people from all over the world" will help her in her future church work. After a summer at the refugee camp, Coleen intends to enter the theology school at Pasadena college.

After that, she says:

"I will do whatever kind of work the Lord leads me to."

Corn Yield May Set World Mark

URBANA, O.—(INS)—It's plenty of corn but there may be a world's record involved to make it worth while.

The yield from a plot of ground at Urbana may reach the 300-bushels-per-acre mark this fall to top the world's record of 224.2 bushels.

The National Conservation Field Day and Plowing Matches committee intend to "baby" the crop along to display the world-breaking production at the September 12 and 13 nation-wide farm event.

E. P. Reed, associate professor of entomology at Ohio State University, described the experiment as "hardly practical" but said:

"I think we'll make 300 bushels." The "pampering" started with the selection of a plot of two and a half acres of unplowed bottom land. Before the planting, a ton of fertilizer was plowed under. Then, with thick planning, 400 pounds of fertilizer was used.

With a "side dressing" of a half ton of 20 per cent nitrogen, the crop is expected to yield about 26,000 stalks—compared with the usual 12,000—per acre.

While the corn is growing, an irrigation system will provide water for dry "spells" and appropriate sprays to kill insects and weeds will be administered. If all goes well, the national plowing matches will see a new corn yield record.

THE FAMILY SCRAPBOOK

By DR. ERNEST G. OSBORNE

It had all developed quite naturally. Leonard, an only child, was nine when his father died. Mrs. Lester had done her best to see that her son had a well-rounded life. Summer camps, and a good boys' club. She had encouraged him to meet friends of the family in order to provide the contacts with men that she felt he needed. In every way she was a good and understanding mother. For several years she and Leonard, now 16, had enjoyed a weekly "date" together. Often they would have dinner at some interesting restaurant and then go to a movie, roller skating or bowling. During these evenings there was a great deal to chat about. It was all very pleasant. One evening, however, she was exceedingly shocked when Leonard suddenly said, "I'd rather go out with you than with any girl I know."

Mrs. Lester had seen enough "mother's sweetheart" situations to make her stop and think. The next time the family "date" was due, she begged to be excused, saying that she wanted to see some particular friends. She suggested that Leonard might like to spend the evening with some of his friends. He was disappointed, but a good sport.

Mrs. Lester wisely followed this policy for the next few months, which gradually weaned Leonard from his great emotional dependence upon his mother.

12-year-old Susanna Winsch, of Gaadenhutte, O., by her mother, who had dyed it brown by boiling it in water with onion skins.

That was Easter Sunday, 1850, and, like today, the time for colored eggs as well as services to commemorate the resurrection of Christ. So the child's father scratched intricate designs on it with an ordinary pin.

Miss Winsch treasured the egg until she died in 1916. It was then given to her niece, Mrs. Nellie Miksch Smith, who left it to her daughter, Mrs. Crites, when she died.

The exterior of the egg is still in perfect condition today. It has retained its brown coloration, and the initials and flower designs etched in it 100 years ago are clearly visible.

Army Uniforms Illegal Dress

MANILA.—(INS)—Manila Judge Potenciano Pecson has ruled that U. S. Army uniforms are illegal garb for costume parties—except for bona fide servicemen.

The court decision followed the arrest and trial of Garry Elms Stanley, an Australian citizen, who was wearing the uniform of a U. S. Army First Lieutenant.

Stanley, whose civilian identity was discovered by U. S. military police, explained:

"I wore the uniform only to go to a costume party."

The Manila Judge sentenced him to two months imprisonment.

Commission Sets Two-Day Doe Hunting Season For '50

HARRISBURG, July 8.—(INS)—A two-day doe hunting season for 1950 was announced Friday by the State Game Commission.

Hunters will be permitted to take only antlerless deer during the first two days of the deer season, November 27 and 28, the Commission ruled.

The "buck season" for male deer with two or more points to one antler will run from November 29 to December 9.

The Commission pointed out that the November 27 opening hour this year will be 9 a. m. instead of 7 a. m. as in recent years.

A limit was set of either one antlerless or one antlered deer, but not both, to be taken during the period by any hunter.

A season bag limit was set of either one antlerless or one antlered deer, but not both, whether taken individually or with a camp or hunting party.

Seasons Are Set

The Commission also set the following seasons for other game during the 1950 hunting season:

Bob White quail, Hungarian partridges and ruffed grouse—November 1-15; ring-neck pheasants, cotton tail rabbits and grey, black and fox squirrels—November 1-25; raccoons, October 16 to February 1; hares, December 25-January 1; woodchucks, July 1-September 30; bears, November 13-18; mink and otters, November 6-December 16; beavers, February 15-March 1.

Nine counties and parts of three others will be closed to wild turkey hunting, while in others only one may be taken from November 1-25.

The muskrat season will be closed during the entire 1950-51 license year.

Roadside Council Seeks Protection Of Scenic Area

HARRISBURG, July 12.—(INS)—The Pennsylvania Roadside Council asked Gov. James H. Duff and the State Commerce Department to have billboards and signs removed from the state's 22 "protected scenic areas."

Otherwise, the council said, the commonwealth should take down the special markers which designate the areas.

The group cited protected areas along the Juniata River, on U. S. Route 22, as "notable examples of the futility of trying to protect outstanding scenery through voluntary cooperation."

Organized members of the sign industry cooperate, the council reported but independent sign owners "refuse to join any cleanup program."

The council said that the state planning board has announced its intention to ask the legislature in 1951 for remedial action.

ROTARIANS MEET

LATROBE, Pa., July 10.—(INS)—About 150 Rotarians from 41 western Pennsylvania Rotary clubs will meet in Latrobe tomorrow.

The one-day assembly will be the first for the organization's new 26th district.
